

Photovoltaic distribution box labeling price

AI Overview

Photovoltaic distribution box labeling kits typically range from $10 to $50 per set, while the distribution boxes themselves cost around $67 per unit. PV Labeling Kits Photovoltaic labeling kits, which include warning labels, stickers, and identification tags for solar panels and distribution boxes, are available online. For example, a 48-piece PV solar system label kit on Amazon is priced around $10–$20 depending on the seller and shipping options. In the UK, Labels Online offers customizable PV warning labels with free express delivery for orders over £150, and prices vary based on personalization, quantity, and material. These labels are essential for safety compliance and clear identification of circuits.

Photovoltaic Distribution Boxes The distribution boxes themselves, which house circuit breakers, surge protection devices, and monitoring equipment, are priced higher. On platforms like Made-in-China, a standard photovoltaic distribution board or combiner box is listed at approximately $67 per piece. These boxes are typically IP65-rated, corrosion-resistant, and designed for outdoor use, ensuring durability and safety in solar installations.

Factors Affecting Price

Material Quality: Labels made from durable, weather-resistant materials cost more, while standard vinyl or adhesive labels are cheaper. Distribution boxes made from stainless steel or high-grade plastics are more expensive but offer longer service life.

Customization: Personalized labels or boxes with OEM logos increase costs. Standard kits are more affordable, while bespoke designs can add 20–30% to the price.

Order Volume: Bulk purchases reduce per-unit costs. For example, buying multiple label kits or distribution boxes can save 15–30% compared to single-unit purchases.

Additional Features: Advanced distribution boxes with intelligent monitoring, modular designs, or smart communication protocols ma...
